

Hexagonal Constructions

All of these figures may be constructed with ruler and compasses, using the regular hexagon in a circle (figure 1) as a beginning. Guessing where the intervals are located is neither necessary nor desirable. Make nice copies of these using circles of radius 5 centimetres. Notice how some figures contain more than 1 interval on some lines.

